Exotic Wood Veneers

These unique wood species offer a range of grain patterns from mild, evenly colored English Sycamore, Quartered Cherry and Wenge, to decidedly wild American Red Gum and Zebrawood.

We put a natural finish on each so that the full effect of natural variations in color, texture and grain may be appreciated. Exotic Wood Veneers are offered through our Millennia line of frameless cabinetry in Coronado and Strata.

American Red Gum: Wild & Wonderful!

American Red Gum veneer will range in color from pale, pinkish brown to deep red, and may include blue-grey tones and even dark brown or black streaks. The bold, prominent grain patterns will vary between door and drawer fronts on the same cabinet and on adjacent cabinets, yielding a colorful, dramatic appearance. The American Red Gum doors shown here are a great example of how unpredictable and beautiful this unique North American hardwood is!

Custom Style

Our Fairfax door style is shown at right in four very different finishes. As you can see, every combination of wood species, finish color and enhancement creates an entirely new look. And since you get to choose every option, you get a custom kitchen with the quality, consistency and durability that comes from a state-of-the-art manufacturing facility.

Where are the color names?

You may have noticed that we do not generally identify finish colors. Why not? Unfortunately, ink on paper just can't accurately replicate the color, depth and texture of stain on wood, or the color and gloss of foils and laminates. The brightness of the paper and the type of ink that is used will affect the color of the printed piece, as will the lighting you view the literature in. Natural, incandescent and fluorescent lighting all change how colors appear.

We always recommend that you visit an authorized Canyon Creek distributor to see actual finish samples on wood, and view foil or laminate colors in person. Your designer can order samples of the door style you're interested in, so you can take the sample(s) home and view the finish in your own lighting and compare it to all the tile, flooring and countertop samples you're considering!
